

Privacy Policy for New Health Analytics

General Notice

New Health Analytics believes you should be aware of what information is collected when you access our websites and how New Health Analytics utilizes this information. This Privacy Policy sets forth the guiding principles regarding the collection, analysis, utilization and disclosure of such information. Please read this Privacy Policy carefully. Use of any New Health Analytics websites signifies your understanding and acceptance of this Privacy Policy.

HONcode

New Health Analytics is a user of Health on the Net. We intend to abide by the requirements of the Code of Conduct set forth in the HONcode. If you believe that New Health Analytics has failed to abide by the HONcode, please click here to send New Health Analytics an e-mail that explains why you believe that we failed to abide by the HONcode.

Capturing Personal Information about Our Visitors

New Health Analytics does not capture personal information about any visitor to our website without their permission. We endeavor to collect, in an anonymous fashion, only the minimum amount of information needed to meet the purposes for which our website was created and to provide the services or benefits you desire. For each visitor, we collect information about the Internet Protocol (IP) address, browser-type used, the date and time of the visit as well as the IP addresses of the locations to which the visitor linked during the visit to our website. This information may be stored on New Health Analytics servers. It is strictly used for internal, statistical reporting purposes such as analyzing trends, website administration, tracking user's movements and gathering broad demographic information for aggregate evaluation. IP addresses are not linked with any personally identifiable information.

Though personal information may be required either by law or in order for us to provide a requested service, in doing so we are subject to the requirements for administering information systems as established in the Virginia Privacy Protection Act, Chapter 26 of Title 2.1 of the Code of Virginia.

Nondisclosure of User Information

New Health Analytics does not sell or rent our user information to any outside company or organization. We do not reveal specific information about users or other personally identifiable data to unaffiliated third parties for their independent use.

Cookie Utilization

A cookie is a piece of text saved from a web server that can be stored on your hard disk. Cookies allow a user machine to store website information and retrieve it at a later date. A cookie is not a program. It is simply a text information file that cannot "do anything." A server can only retrieve information off the user machine that you have put there. It cannot retrieve information from other cookies or any other information from your machine. Some of our website pages may use cookies.

Responsibility for Third-Party Websites

Hyper-links to websites outside of the New Health Analytics shall open a new browser window. Please be aware that New Health Analytics is not responsible for the privacy practices of other websites. We encourage our users to be aware when they leave our website and to read the privacy statements of each and every website that collects personally identifiable information. This privacy policy applies solely to information collected by New Health Analytics.

Terms of Service

This Privacy Policy is part of the Terms and Conditions and may be changed without notice to you. In no event shall such change(s) permit New Health Analytics to disclose Personal Information to an unaffiliated third party for any purpose.

Notification of Changes If New Health Analytics decides to change our privacy policy, we shall post those changes on our homepage. We shall keep our users apprised of any changes in the information we collect, how we use it, and under circumstances, if any, we disclose it.
